Casino Q&A

Q: After giving me a hand-pay win, the slot attendant asked me to give the machine another spin. I did. But did I have to?

A: No, you really didn't have to. It's just considered casino etiquette. Here's a typical hand-pay scenario. When you hit a slot win requiring a hand-pay, the machine locks up and summons a slot attendant who opens up the machine to verify that it is operating properly. Then you're given the hand-pay amount. The reason you're asked to give the machine another spin is to erase the winning symbols from the screen, which unlocks the machine, putting it back into play. In some casinos, the attendant will unlock the machine and tell you to resume your play.

There are cases reported where the slot attendant made the spin and hit another jackpot. And to the player's chagrin, this second jackpot went to the casino, not to the Helpful tip. After a hand-pay, give the lucky machine another few spins. Don't believe the myth that once a machine has made a big payout it won't payout again for a long time. Your chances of hitting a jackpot are the same on every spin.

Q: When I visit my local casino, I look for my favorite slot—one I've previously won big on. But on my last trip to the casino my favorite slot was gone. What happened to it? A: When a player fails to see their "lucky" slot in its usual location, they assume it was moved somewhere else on the floor. But when was the last time you saw a 300-pound slot machine being lugged around the casino?

Here's what happened. The slot machines a casino orders from a manufacturer are mostly purchased on lease. And the lease states that if the game makes no money, the manufacturer must replace it with another game. And with most games, the manufacturer simply replaces the old game with a new one in the old cabinet.

Some slot machines have a life span of only a few months, depending on popularity. That's why you keep seeing slot games come and go.

* When hammering a nail, try this saveyour-finger trick: Use a clothespin to hold the nail steady, and then use your hammer to drive it in. Hammering into the wall? Push the nail through a strip of cardboard, and hold the cardboard over the right spot. No more banged up fingers or thumbs!

* "Exfoliation can be easy if you already have a bag or jar of Epsom salts. Soak in a warm bath and rub the salts over your skin to gently scrub dead skin away. A little essential oil might help, too!" — D.D. in Florida

* Got plastic packaging that is a pain to get open? Use your can opener, run along the ides, to break into your packages. It works!

* To get keys on a keychain easily, use a staple remover to create an opening to slip the keys on. It is very effective and will keep you from being frustrated.

* A great use for those old knee high stockings (no runs!): Stuff with a mix of crystalized kitty litter and scent boosting beads you find in the laundry aisle. You can stuff these in stinky shoes to freshen and deodorize. The litter wicks away moisture from sweaty feet, and the scent boosters last for a good long while.

* "Need a new look for a favorite sweater? Change out your buttons. It's such a small thing and a big change in look!" — E.L. in * Skunk run-in? Try this mix before you buy pricey de-stink shampoos at the pet store. Mix a quart of 3% peroxide, a teaspoon or two of dish soap, 1/4 cup of baking soda and quart of room-temp water. Apply to pet, and work deep into the fur. Massage in for five minutes and rinse thoroughly.

Bingo John

Rapid Departure

Dear reader, as you may remember we left Bingo John stuck in a full body cast with Sarah-Mae at his side. She had plans for marriage, but Bingo John had another idea.

After I got out of the sweaty, itchy cast, I took a look at myself in the mirror. I was shocked by what I saw. My body was a little sliver of itself. It was all white like a dead fish in the river. I was depressed by what I saw. But the good thing was. I was back in my old living spot with my nice clothes and comfy recliner. After I scrubbed my body all fresh and clean, I cleaned my shoes, getting them nice and shiny for my next round of Bingo.

Just as I was finishing up, the phone started to ring. It was Sarah-Mae.

"How's my lover boy?" she asked I didn't say a word. I let the receiver down real soft, hoping she'd think it was a bad

I knew she was coming over. She wanted to finalize the wedding plans.

I ran back and forth over the house looking for someplace to hide. Right when I was running out of ideas, I looked out the back window and saw the battered canoe that Bates left at my house. It'd been sitting there for weeks just collecting rainwater. I live right on the river, and I figured I could float downstream, catching the various Bingo halls they advertise in the Bingo Bugle. I was still packed from the stay at Sarah-Mae's. All I'd need was a little food, and some cash.

THE STEP CLOSER AND I'LL FOR YOU IN THE CHING, I'LL TIE YOUR

Haves into a finit, give you an atomic wedgie, overfeed for lann, cancel your netflix account, then I'll hide your dental floss, change by cethelon your sleep number Heck, I figured. It'd be quite the adventure. Sarah-Mae would never find me. I'd be the "Bingo Bandit" floating from town to town, using nature's roadways to move me along.

Without a second thought, I grabbed my bags and ran out to the canoe. I drained out the water and slid my freedom craft down the muddy bank. It was getting dark before I was in the water, and a thin fog was starting up. I pushed away from shore. Instantly, I felt a huge weight lift from my shoulders. When I got to the middle of the river, the fog hid both shorelines. I felt like I was floatin' away, up on some cloud

Then out of the fog, I heard a haunting voice comin' from the shore.

"I know you're out there, lover boy. I'll always love you. You're the only man for me." It was Sarah-Mae calling me back to the shore like Odysseus and the Harpies. I plugged my ears with cotton and paddled. She called and called, her voice getting fainter by the minute. Her cries faded until all that was left was the soft sound of water Halls in Heaven... as it passed under the canoe.

eye. Not a tear like I was going to miss her, for the "Bingo Bandit" Stay tuned for next but a tear coming out of someplace deep, month's adventure. like the seeds of it were always going to be

Then a black shape came out of the mist and jerked me out of my reverie. It was an old rotten log bobbing in the river. I paddled up to its side. The bark was gone from the wood. It was covered in a layer of verdant algae like it'd been in the river for a long time. I pushed it away with my paddle, and let the river carry me away. The Bingo Bugle said the next hall was down river twenty or so miles, so I leaned back and relaxed.

JACK OVER-REACHER

I quickly fell asleep. When I woke up, the fog had lifted. Somehow, I slept through the night. The old log was just ahead, but then it started bobbin' up and down like there was someone underneath pushin'. I watched it real close before I realized it wasn't someone pushing the log. It was the river. I was headed into some kind of rapids. The river made a sharp bend to the right. The current pushed the log, along with thousands of others, into a huge prickly pile shaped like a gang of Cancer Research agitated rattlesnakes. By this time the river roared with whitecaps and waves, but before I could grab the paddle, the river pushed me into the log jam. Over I went. The canoe sank instantly. I grabbed onto the inside of the gunwale with my foot to keep a hold on research across the electorate. the canoe. Once I was in the logs, the canoe went under a downed tree, and I went with it. I was pinned. I couldn't get my foot out of the canoe. I thought I'd never see the inside of another bingo hall. As things went black, I figured they must have pretty good Bingo

Next month, Bingo John gets out of a snag. A little tear welled up in the corner of my Or does he? Or does the real adventure begin

January Bingo Gift Giveaway - VGK Gift Bonanza Blowout

During all bingo sessions on Friday, Jan. 23, True Rewards members will receive Vegas Golden Knights merch with a minimum $25 buy-in.

Locals Edge Free Bingo Blue Pack

Every Sunday and Tuesday, Locals Edge True Rewards members can receive one free blue pack bingo bonus voucher by swiping their card once per day at the kiosk. Players must present the voucher and their Locals Edge card to the Edgewater Bingo Room sales associate to redeem the pack. Vouchers are nontransferable and must be redeemed within 24 hours of printing.

Every Tuesday, players may use their True Rewards card points at any session for bingo play at double the value. 250 True Rewards card points are equivalent to $1 in bingo play.

Cashball is a progressive jackpot available at all bingo sessions unless noted otherwise. Packs must be validated to qualify, with a $1 validation fee for all color packs and a $2 validation fee for rainbow packs. The first ball drawn in the first game of the session becomes that session's Cashball number. Winning on the Cashball number during games from 2 p.m. through 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. through 11 p.m. on a validated pack awards the progressive jackpot.

Second Chance Cashball

The Second Chance Cashball progressive jackpot becomes available only after the primary Cashball has been hit. A $2 validation charge covers all validated packs for that session. The first ball drawn in the first game serves as both the Cashball and Second Chance Cashball number. Winning on that number during games from 3 p.m through 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. through 11 p.m. on a validated pack pays the Second Chance progressive jackpot. All Cashball winners are paid aggregately, and the Cashball must be the last number called in the winning pattern. Once the Second Chance jackpot is awarded, it is no longer available for the remainder of the session.

Bonus X Goes Wild

Players must have a minimum $4 buy-in for the session to purchase and play the Bonus X Goes Wild game. The game is valid only for the session in which it was purchased. If multiple players win on the same ball call, the prize is split evenly. Validation fees do not apply to this game.

Double Progressive

Double Progressive is a coverall game that can only be won within the posted number of balls drawn. The jackpot begins at 32 numbers and increases every 14 days up to 35 numbers, where it remains until won. The jackpot starts at $10,000 and grows daily. The game is offered at all sessions, with cards available for $1 each, paper or electronic.

Bigger Bingo Coverall

This multi-location progressive jackpot is shared between the Arizona Charlie's properties in Las Vegas; Pahrump Nugget and Lakeside Casino in Pahrump, Nev.; and Edgewater. Bingo players have the opportunity to spin the bingo coverall wheel to determine the prize percentage. Guests can win up to 100% of the progressive jackpot in 55 numbers or less, starting at $10,000 and more.

Super Punch Bingo

Super Punch Bingo is played as a nine-pack pattern on a three-on card face. Players who win on or before the 16th through 27th ball call receive a designated number of punches based on the pay table. Each winner receives one chance to select punches on the Super Win Punch Board to determine the prize amount, including progressives. If multiple winners occur on the same ball call, a casino agent will select punches in order from the top left across each row, and prizes will be split accordingly. Duplicate cards are treated as a single entry and paid on a split basis. Once all progressive prizes are awarded, the board resets to its base seed value.

New Routine and Cherry Mice

On Jan. 1st a friend opened a new gym called Resolutions. It has exercise equipment for the first two weeks, then it will be turned into a bar for the remainder of the year. –Funky Little Diva

If you're reading this, then you've made it first blessing of 2026 for all of us. Robert and I could use a few more blessings as the end of 2025 was very stressful. He was hospitalized for a demon stomach virus that attacked him with a vengeance. Along with that we had to move as our rented condo is being sold. Imagine! two old pooperheads like us trying to find a new home via internet and word of mouth; telling everyone we knew and even casual strangers we were looking for a new abode. Also imagine these two pooperheads agreeing on what kind of abode was needed vs. what was wanted. Robert declared smaller, whereas I craved an extra bedroom. Marital war was waged as we disagreed; much like when we disagree on setting the furnace/ AC thermostat. It seems ours has only two settings; hot as hell or bone chilling. He is perpetually cold while I'm hotter than a firecracker; not in a good way. Our thermostat goes up and down more than a yo-yo wielded by a drunken monkey.

End of story, we moved and are very happy now that our landlord has replaced the carpets. That was necessary because a rainy day caused dog poo odor so strong it curled our noses to leach through the old carpets. Currently, peace reigns. That is, until one of us adjusts the thermostat.

January 3rd is Chocolate Covered Cherry Day. In 1929 Chella Confections introduced these chocolate delights and their sugary, gooey liquid centers made them an instant hit. I'm a big fan of both them and the chocolate covered cherry hot chocolate that Robert makes for me (maraschino cherry juice, a few cherries, and Amaretto in a mug of hot chocolate topped with whipped cream). If you haven't already, another goodie to try is chocolate cherry mice. A maraschino cherry is the mouse body with its stem forming the mouse tail. Dip it in chocolate with a chocolate kiss for the head, almond slices or peanuts for mouse ears, a red-hot candy dot for the nose, and a dab of white icing for the eyes. Adults and kids alike will pounce on them like a starving cat eyeing its next

Finally, we all know that January is a time for new beginnings; a thoughtful evaluation of where we've been and where we're headed. I don't do New Year resolutions, but how about making a personal New Routine Bingo Card for 2026. Draw a regular bingo grid, five blank squares, five across and five down, free space in the middle. In each square, write a new thing to try or a task to accomplish. For example, declutter your closet; replace some of your TV and cell phone time with reading time; do a random act of kindness, or plan a solo adventure to some place you've never been. In the bingo card Free Space specify a special reward for yourself after you complete five of the items in a row. Bingo! Until next month, may Lady Luck blow you kisses as you dance out the door with dollars. Win big. Contact: nlpvzw6172@gmail.com

How to Beef Up Dinner Without More Beef

Times are tight and grocery prices keep creeping up. Every trip to the store feels like an Olympic event in budget gymnastics. This week, we're talking about how to stretch your ground meat recipes without losing flavor, texture or protein.

There's a secret ingredient that can help you do just that, and you've probably eaten it hundreds of times without realizing it: TVP, or textured vegetable protein.

Made from defatted soy flour, TVP is a shelf-stable, affordable and versatile plantbased protein. You've likely had it in storebought chili, burritos or frozen entrees, quietly adding bulk, texture and nutrition without changing the flavor.

Used on its own, it's a blank slate, like tofu so seasoning and cooking technique make all the difference. Treat it right, and you'll have something meaty, savory and delicious.

A 1/4 cup of dry TVP packs about 12-15 grams of protein, nearly identical to meat once rehydrated. It's high-protein, cholesterol-free and easy to find in bulk bins labeled textured vegetable protein (TVP) or textured soy protein (TSP) — they're the same thing.

How to Make TVP Taste Great

The biggest mistake people make with TVP is treating it like filler. It's not, it's a flavor sponge! The secret to success comes down to three words: flavor, flavor, flavor,

Use broth, not water. Rehydrate with broth or seasoned liquid to build flavor from the Add fat. TVP is fat-free, so cook it with olive oil or mix it with higher-fat meat. In this week's recipe, I use 73/27 ground beef — once stretched with TVP, onions and mushrooms, it's perfectly juicy.

Layer flavor in the pan. Let TVP soak up the garlic, onion, herbs and broth as it cooks for the richest taste

Give it another chance. If you've tried TVP before and weren't impressed, this method may win you over.

SAVORY BEEF & MUSHROOM MEATBALLS

Yield: 48 meatballs Total Time: 45 mins

1/2 cup beef broth 1/2 cup TVP (textured vegetable

1 tablespoon olive oil

1 cup diced onion

1 1/2 cups finely chopped white mushrooms

1 tablespoon minced garlic 1 pound ground beef (73/27 blend)

1 egg 2 tablespoons breadcrumbs

1/2 teaspoon salt 1 tablespoon Italian seasoning

Preheat the oven to 400 F. Line a large baking sheet with parchment or foil for easy

In a small bowl, pour the hot beef broth over the TVP to rehydrate. Let it sit while you prepare the vegetables so it can soak up all that Heat olive oil in a skillet over medium heat. Add the onion and cook about 5 minutes until softened. Lower the heat to medium-low, then add mushrooms and garlic. Cook another 5 minutes until tender. Stir in the TVP and remove from heat to cool and marry the flavors.

In a large mixing bowl, combine the ground beef, egg, 1/4 cup water, breadcrumbs, salt and herbs. Add the cooled sauteed mixture Mix gently with clean hands until evenly combined. Scoop about 1 tablespoon of mixture for each and roll into small, golf-ballsize meatballs. Arrange in a single layer on the prepared baking sheet.

Bake for 20-25 minutes, or until browned and cooked through (internal temp 160 F).

Enjoy over pasta, rice, tucked in a pita, or added to soup. Refrigerate leftovers for up to four days or freeze for up to three months.

This recipe is a perfect example of how to live where frugal meets fabulous. By stretching 1 pound of beef into 48 flavorful meatballs, you're getting the same satisfying protein, a lighter carbon footprint and a much happier grocery budget.

Q: I'm really enjoying the miniseries Death by Lightning on Netflix about the assassination of President Garfield. How historically accurate is it? — P.R.

A: It depends on who you ask, but the majority of critics and historians would say that it's very accurate, especially when you compare it to other biopics such as Ryan Murphy's Monster series (also on Netflix). In addition to it obviously being a true story, Death by Lightning is based on Candice Millard's bestseller Destiny of the Republic. at DivasOnADimeDotCom. Email Patti at It features a fantastic cast that includes Michael Shannon (Boardwalk Empire) as President Garfield and Matthew Macfadyen as his assassin, Charles Guiteau.

> According to an article in Esquire, one of the liberties that the series takes is the anachronistic dialogue, but overall, it "nails the important stuff." There's a great debate in the r/Presidents group on Reddit about what is deemed fiction and what is known truth in the miniseries, but mostly all are in agreement that it's an enjoyable watch that gets most of the facts correct.

Letting it Be at Bingo

For my New Year's resolution this year I resolved to let go of all the petty difficulties I have with people. I wanted a clean slate to begin the new year. I especially wanted to get rid of the little niggles of annoyance I often feel at Bingo. I resolved to just be myself and let everybody else do the same. That is easier said than done.

My head keeps wanting to change people, to make them conform to what I want them to be. For instance, I would like everybody at Bingo to mark their cards "properly." That is, not have the circles go out of the lines or mark off the I row before they have completed scanning the B row. I would like everyone to scan from top to bottom before they scan from side to side. I know all this is ridiculous, but it is what my head wants. I relax and take deep breaths, but it doesn't help much. I still want everyone to conform. Therefore, I decided to change my method of play at Bingo. Instead of being very aware of the people around me, I kept my own counsel, didn't even glance at my neighbor's cards. That worked except with Kate. I can't seem to stop criticizing her even for the few hours it takes to play Bingo. I have learned to keep my opinions to myself, but that doesn't stop my internal monitor from going full tilt. I don't care for the way she makes her bed, either.

So, I decided to try something really new with her. I would not voice my opinions at all for a period of one month. At first, she just glanced at me when I didn't show her that she had missed a number in Bonanza. But then when I failed to remind her to mark out all her 3s in a game called "wild threes" she was truly perplexed. I smiled, but internally wanted to say something, probably snippy.

"You didn't tell me I had missed a three," said Kate, scowling.

"Oh," I said—nothing more

"Well, what's the matter with you?" she asked. "You always double check me." Again, I just smiled.

The next game was the Indian Starwhich is basically a large plus and a large X combined on one card. It is almost a blackout, but still requires fierce concentration to keep from missing it. As usual, Kate was chatting to the neighbors—not properly focusing on the game. I did not say anything, but my inner manager was screaming. Finally, Kate was on and I wanted to scream at her to pay attention, but she continued in her own casual way. And her number came up! At the very last second, before the next number was called, she yelled, "Bingo!" I was so relieved that she had caught it that I was speechless.

She nudged me and said, "Thought I was gonna miss it, didn't you? Well, I guess I fooled you.'

"Yes," I admitted. "But I'm trying to stop watching your cards and just pay attention to my own.'

"That's a great idea," she said. "Let's make it our New Year's resolution!"

Its host, Eric Raskin, is a Huntington Press author; he wrote the book The Moneymaker Effect, about Chris Moneymaker, the amateur who won the 2003 World Series of Poker. In a recent podcast, Eric "churns through the overabundance of gambling news overwhelming the industry in recent days" and if you want to hear the greatest shortest roundup of the ridiculous number of headlines in the industry over the past week,

He then interviews, in his words, "the one and only" Anthony Curtis (gambler, author and founder of The Las Vegas Advisor), whom he mentions in the same breath as Elvis. Anthony discusses if the sky is falling for Vegas, if the city still stands out, whether the A's stadium and the new Bally's will ever happen, what the Blackjack Ball (on Halloween) was like, and other rare stories including what he might've done with his life if he'd never discovered card counting.

Vegas Declines

The Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Authority budget for the first quarter of its fiscal year (the third quarter of the calendar year) was down $11.7 million, due to reduced room taxes collected between July 1 and September 30. Those were $73.9 million, down $12.3 million (14%) year over year The last time the LVCVA's FY first quarter was that low was in 2021, when the city was still in the throes of the pandemic, with $67.1 million in room taxes collected.

In the summer quarter, the average daily room rate declined nearly 7% over 2024. down to $137.85 compared to $142.48 a year ago. In addition, room occupancy fell 7% to 76.1%, with 122,044 rooms filled on average, a decline of more than 8% from the 130,820 average in 2024. Meanwhile according to the new LVCVA budget, some costs are rising. Due to the downturn in visitation, the agency doubled its marketing expenses to $52.5 million. When the LVCVA, one of the best-funded tourism agencies in the nation, starts crying poor, the slump is really starting to hit home.

Managing Bankroll Part I

Every blackjack player has the goal of having fun, winning money, and avoiding losing their bankroll too quickly. The key to accomplishing all three is how you manage your money, the size of your bankroll, and how much you bet. Following are tips to help you have staying power when you play, and with a little luck, be able to cash in on some short-term wins. Two important items I want to state up front:

1. Money you use to gamble should not, under any circumstance, be "scared money," meaning money that you need for rent, mortgage, utilities, food, etc. The amount you set aside to gamble should be discretionary income that will not cause hardship in the event you lose it.

2. Recommendations in this article are for recreational gamblers, specifically someone facing a house edge even under optimal playing conditions. Bankroll and money management strategies are different for card counters (see Chapter 10 in my Ultimate Blackjack Strategy Guide).

You should bring enough bankroll for each session so you have a decent chance of winning money should the cards come your way, with a minimum risk of going broke. The latter is important. For example, betting $25 a hand at blackjack with a $100 session bankroll is suicidal because you have a 90plus% chance of busting out because your bet to bankroll ratio is too small. You should have a reasonable spread between minimum bet and session bankroll. How much?

• Rule #1. For a 3-hour playing session, have at least 50-times your minimum bet. What this means is that for a $5 bettor, you should have at least a $250 session bankroll. A $10 bettor should have $500, and so forth. This will not guarantee a profit for every session, or even half of them, but it will allow you to stay in the game even if you experience a third of your total bankroll with you for your session bankroll. (Total Bankroll/3 = Session

3. Rule #2: Have at least 150 times your minimum bet as your total bankroll.

4. Rule #3. Have it stashed away in a money market account (call it your "401-G," where the "G" is for gambling). That means, for a $5 bettor, you should have $750 set aside in your 401-G. If you don't have that much money right now for playing blackjack, I suggest you wait until you can grow your 401-G to $750 before you start playing with

When you complete a three-hour session, you are most likely going to have more, or less, than your starting $250 session bankroll ($5 bettor). Whatever that amount happens to be, deposit it back into your 401-G. Note: the bankroll in the 401-G is to be used solely for playing blackjack. It should not be used for other expenses such as drinks, meals, rooms, and transportation.

Why so much bankroll? Because blackjack is a game of ups and downs, you never know (or can predict) when you'll experience a hot or cold streak. By having the recommended bankroll, you will be safeguarding yourself from going broke.

Proportional Betting

Over time, your 401-G is going to grow and shrink (hopefully, with some luck it will grow). What I recommend is that you always bet in proportion to the amount of money that you currently have in your 401-G (total bankroll) to decrease further your risk of tapping out. This is how it works.

Suppose you are a $10 bettor and you want to play a 3-hour session. You have a $1,500 total bankroll in your 401-G ($10 times 150). You withdraw one third of your total bankroll ($500) for your session bankroll.

Let's suppose luck wasn't with you in this session, and you end up losing $300, meaning your session bankroll shrank to $200. After you deposit the $200 back into your 401-G, your total bankroll is now $1,200. For your next 3-hour session, you take

This is money you set aside to play one third of $1,200 or $400 for your next blackjack. Each time you play, you bring one session, and your minimum bet should be $8 ($1,200/150). Likewise, if you win money in any session, you'll be starting your next session with a slightly larger bankroll and minimum bet size. The latter could grow your bankroll faster should you experience a good run of cards in your next session. The point is: proportional betting will prolong staying power, allowing you to ride out losing streaks and be in the game when winning streaks occur. Remember: 1. Minimum bet x 150 = total bankroll; 2. Session bankroll = total bankroll/3

by Jim Miller

Maintain Your Brain

Dear Savvy Senior,

Are there any proven strategies to preventing cognitive decline? I have a family history of dementia and worry about my own memory and cognitive abilities as I grow older.

-Forgetful at 55

Dear Forgetful,

For most people, starting in their fifties and sixties, the brain's ability to remember names, multi-task or learn something new starts declining. While our genes (which we can't control) play a role in determining our cognitive aging, our general health (which we do have some control over) plays a bigger factor.

Here are some medically recommended lifestyle strategies you can employ that can help stave off cognitive loss and maybe even build a stronger brain.

health conditions, like diabetes, heart disease and even depression. So, if you have high blood pressure, high cholesterol or diabetes vou need to treat them with lifestyle changes and medication (if necessary) and get them skill level to keep you challenged. under control. And if you have a history of depression, talk to your doctor about treatment options.

Exercise: Aerobic exercise increases blood flow to all parts of your body, including your brain, to keep the brain cells well nourished. So, choose an aerobic activity you enjoy like walking, cycling, dancing, swimming, etc., regular alcohol consumption both effect the that elevates your heart rate and do it for at brain in a negative way, so kick the habit least 30 to 40 minutes three times a week.

(Editor's Note: A recent study published in the Harvard Medical Review suggests regular weight training may keep your brain strong as you age. Participants who did twice-aweek weight training with increased loads, meaning they added weight and did more of each exercise as they got stronger, performed better in cognitive tests and showed less brain shrinkage in areas typically associated with Alzheimer's disease.)

Eat healthy: A heart-healthy diet, like the Mediterranean diet, will also help protect to help reduce stress.

the brain. A Mediterranean diet includes relatively little red meat and emphasizes whole grains, fruits and vegetables, fish and shellfish, and nuts, olive oil and other healthy fats. Also keep processed foods and sweets to a minimum.

Get plenty of sleep: Quality, restful sleep contributes to brain health too. Typically, adults should get between seven and nine hours of sleep daily. If you have persistent problems sleeping, you need to identify and address the problem. Medications, late-night exercise and alcohol can interfere with sleep quality and length, as can arthritis pain, sleep apnea and restless leg syndrome. If you need help, make an appointment with a sleep specialist who will probably recommend an overnight diagnostic sleep test.

Challenge your mind: Some research suggests that mind challenging activities can help improve memory, and slow agerelated mental decline. But be aware that these activities consist of things you aren't accustomed to doing. In other words, crossword puzzles aren't enough to challenge your brain if you're already a regular puzzle doer. Instead, you need to pick up a new skill like learning to dance, play a musical Manage health problems: Studies have instrument, study a new language or do math shown that cognitive problems are related to problems – something that's challenging and a little outside vour comfort zone

> Brain-training websites like Lumosity Elevate and Peak are good mind exercising tools because they continually adapt to your Socializing and interacting with other people is another important way to stimulate the brain. So, make a point to reach out and stay connected to friends, family and neighbors. Join a club, take a class or even volunteeranything that enhances your social life.

Don't smoke or drink: Smoking and if you smoke and, if you drink, do so only occasionally.

Check your eyes and ears: A growing body of evidence shows that vision and hearing loss, which affects brain stimulation, can also increase the risk of cognitive decline. So, get your eyes and ears checked regularly and treat any issues promptly.

Reduce stress: Some stress is good for the brain, but too much can be toxic. There's evidence that things like mindfulness meditation, yoga and tai chi are all good ways
